Adriatic Coast of Croatia:

A Geographic Portrait

Herb Eder, Professor Emeritus of Geography, CSU East Bay, will present Adriatic Coast of Croatia: a Geographic Portrait on Tuesday, June 5, between 10:00 am and 11:30 am in Room D. The National Geographic Society named Croatia the “Tourist Destination of the Year for 2006.” Using maps and slides explore the coast from the northwest peninsula of Istria through northern and central Dalmatia to southernmost Dubrovnic, “the Pearl of the Adriatic.” Urban landscapes, traces of Roman and Venetian origins, ancient walled towns, and contemporary cities unfold. View rural landscapes of the coast and islands with their historic Mediterranean products. Our journey ends in neighboring Montenegro and Bosnia. This class is presented by Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at CSU East Bay. Class is free for OLLI members and $5 for non-OLLI members. To reserve a seat, stop by the Mastick office or call (510) 747-7506.
